sociation Cordial in Praise.

Following is a tribute to the memory of Jeneral Fitzhugh Lee, from the Hebrew Memorial Association;

"In the passing of Fitzhugh Lee our country has lost a noble soldler and the South her best beloved son.

"The name of Lee has for generations stood for purity and nobility of character, heroism and unselfish devotion to State and country. The life record of Fitzhugh Lee has but added lustre to the grand oid name he bore.

"We, the ladies of the Hobrew Memorial Association, recall with mournful pleasure that his last public appearance in the old Capital of the Confederacy was on the occasion of our Memorial Day Celebration, less than a year ago. None, who was then present, will ever forget the gallant soldler, as on that bright May afternoon, he stood beside the flags he loved and served so well, and with kindling eye and ringing voice, recalled the stirring scenes of "sixty-one—sixty-five"

PITTSBURG, PA., May 5.—At a massmeeting of the representative colored people of this city to take suitable action upon the death of General Fitzhugh Lee, speeches were made by Giles B. Jackson, of Richmond, and others, and the followling resolutions were unanimously adopted:
"Whereas, the sudden death of General
Fitzhugh Lee, president of the Jamestown Exposition Company of the United States of America, was announced through the press of this country on Saturday moring, the 28th day of April last, which has caused a shock upon the people of this country, regardless of color, creed or political affiliation; and, whereas, the country has lost a great sodder and statesman, and another of Virginia's great sons has fallen; therefore, be it

Pa., this first day of May, 1866, That in at times enthusiastic audience at Leader Hall last night. His remarks were listabout two-thirds of the voters of the city, some of whom were outspoken Mon-

The speech was along the line of those previously made by the senator. He dwelt upon the various charges made by his opponents, and raviewed briefly his career in the Senate, bringing out the principal achievements during his two terms. When he spoke of the charge that he was a corporation attorney, and denied it in vehement language, and when he stated his position on the question of convict labor on the public roads, the audience loudly applauded. His remarks concerning the stand he took in all matters of interest to the working man was also applauded, and it was a minute or so before the speaker could proceed.

Most of the speaker could proceed. Most of the speaker could proceed to statements made by those opposed to his re-election, and to reviewing the work credited to him during his service in Congress.

In starting off, he said that he did not differ with his distinguished competitor on matters of public importance. The discussions must therefore, of necessity, be confined to personal matters. that he was a corporation attorney, and

That in the death of General Fitzhugh Lee the country has lost a patriot, in whom the late President Mokinley reposed special trust, and whose counsel he solicited at a time when the services of great men were in demand as counselors to guido the great ship of State.

"Resolved second, That the said Pittsburg branch of the said Negro Development and Exposition Company of the United States of America, unite with the people of Virginia in paying the highest tribute of respect to the late General Fitzhugh Lee; and that Glies B. Jackson, the director general of the said company, and who has just spoken in such high terms of General Lee, explaining his virtue and character, especially those in whom he had shown his kindness and friendly feelings toward our race, especially during his term as the Governor of Virginia, be, and is hereby, requested to present a copy of these resolutions to the next meeting of the Board of Directors of the Jamestown Exposition Company, and cause the same to be published in such papers as he may deem proper.

"Resolved third, That in the death of General Lee the Jamestown Exposition Company has lost a great defender of its cause, and the Negro Development and Exposition Company of the United States of America a friend, who has espoused its cause in high places, and whom the negro has looked to for the best results in their effort to make a creditable exhibit at the said Jamestown Exposition.

"W. A. BROOKS, Chairman; "Rev. G. W. JOHNSON, Secretary." "I was an advocate of the resolution," he said, "and the statement that I voted against it is maliciously false."
"I do not say that my competitor has made this charge through any false mo-tive." he continued. "But candidates for important offices should be informed be-Drugs Killed Young Man in fore they make such reckless charges."

The senator endeavored to refute the charge that he had accomplished nothing since he had been in the Senate. He first spoke of the claim the State had against the Government, in reference to which the Governor is alleged to have said the amount received by the State was only resulting from the Civil War, notably $25,000 for Richmond College, and the money for the improvements at James were against him, and he said he would he glad to know what he hast done to cause them to oppose him. "The worring men always appeal to me," he said, "and I have upon every occasion taken up legislation that was beneficial to their interests."

He emphatically denied the charge that he had opposed the employers' liability bill, and said that he had done all ne could for its passage, and was now working on the bill in Cougress, by which the State bill might be strengthened and broadened. He had been instrumental in placing the men employed at the navy yard and other government work shops on the same footing with the clerks, who had holiday every summer with pay, "If I have falled to do anything for the working man," he said, "I would like to know what it is."

He denied that he had been employed by any railroad company since he had been in the Sonate, and said that the presidents of the various railroads were opposed to his election.

In winding up his two-hours' speech, Senator Martin paid a fine tribute to the working man, and said he thought that the Government should contribute to the improvement of public roads, and that the best place for convicts, Stata or local, was at work on the roads, away from the shop and competition to honest labor.
